

Figure 2.3 Ionization potentials for multiply charged ions of all of the elements [15].

Multiply-stripped ions can be formed, in principle, in two different ways: by a single electron-atom encounter in which many electrons are removed in a single event, or by multiple electron-atom/ion encounters in which a single electron is removed at each step and the high charge state is built up by a sequence of many ionizing